Heu, rien! Je ne vois rien! Il ne s'est rien passé ici depuis des années... des siècles même!!

Ah! Mais, j'y pense! De l'autre côté du lac, il y a le clou du trappeur! Tu sais, Georges, c'est ce morceau de métal coincé dans un rocher. Il est là depuis au moins deux cents ans, sans rouiller ni s'oxyder!

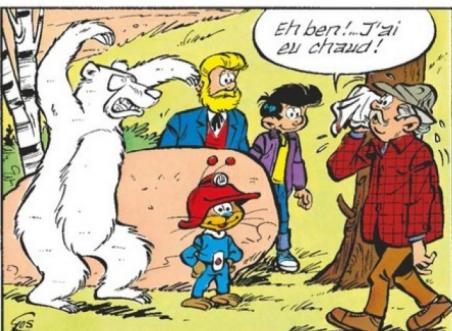

On dit que c'est un trappeur qui l'a volé à des Indiens du Yukon, croyant que c'était de l'or. Quand il est arrivé ici, il était à bout de forces et il a laissé tomber son "clou" dans une faille de rocher. Le lendemain, le type est mort et personne n'a jamais pu enlever le clou. Les Indiens le disaient maudit. Demain, j'irai vous le montrer!
